PRODUCT STYLE STANDARD

Controlled design-style vocabulary for AI matching, filtering and product classification

1. Purpose

Defines how design style is assigned to products in AIDOOi. The objective is a broad but controlled vocabulary that recognizes established and commercially useful interior/furniture styles without allowing uncontrolled marketing terms to fragment the data.

2. Core Style Fields

Field	Requirement	Rule
Primary Style	Required	Best single representation of the product's dominant design language.
Secondary Style	Conditional / Recommended	One meaningful secondary influence when clearly present; leave blank if not justified.

3. Style Architecture

Style Family -> Standard Style -> Alias / Related Term. The Standard Style is the canonical stored value. Aliases help normalize seller language and user queries but do not create duplicate styles.

4. Master Style Vocabulary - Modern & Contemporary

Style Family	Standard Style	Aliases / Related Terms
Modern	Modern	Clean-lined modern; general modern
Modern	Mid-Century Modern	MCM; 1950s/1960s modern
Modern	Bauhaus	Functionalist; geometric modernism
Modern	International Style	International Modern

PRODUCT STYLE STANDARD

16. Assignment Rules

Rule	Standard
Primary Style	Choose exactly one dominant canonical style.
Secondary Style	Use at most one secondary style in the Universal Product Master unless future recommendation testing proves a need for more.
No forced secondary	Leave blank when a second influence is weak or speculative.
Use evidence	Assign from visible design language and verified product information, not seller marketing alone.
Use aliases only for normalization	Store the canonical Standard Style, not an alias.
Avoid over-classification	Do not tag every possible influence; prioritize recommendation usefulness.

17. Style vs Other Attributes

Term	Treat As
Contemporary / Japandi / Art Deco	Design Style
Luxury / Premium / High-End	Positioning / quality descriptor, not automatically Style
Cozy / Warm / Calm	Mood / aesthetic descriptor
Curved / Geometric / Sculptural	Form / design characteristic
Velvet / Walnut / Brass	Material or finish, not Style
Beige / Sage / Black	Colour, not Style

18. Hybrid Products

A product may legitimately combine two design languages. Store the strongest as Primary Style and one clearly meaningful influence as Secondary Style. Example: Primary = Contemporary; Secondary = Industrial. Do not create free-text hybrids such as 'Modern-Industrial-Luxury-Chic'.

19. Example - AIDOOi Test Lounge Chair

Field	Recommended Value
Primary Style	Contemporary
Secondary Style	Industrial
Reasoning	Clean contemporary silhouette with a visually exposed metal frame and sling construction that gives a meaningful industrial influence.
Do not store as Style	Luxury, Premium, Brown, Leather, Bronze

20. AI and User-Language Normalization

User or seller language may contain aliases, mixed phrases or mood words. AIDOOi should normalize recognized terms to canonical Standard Styles before matching. For example, 'Scandi' -> Scandinavian; 'MCM' -> Mid-Century Modern; 'Boho' -> Bohemian. Mood and marketing words should be handled separately rather than creating new style records.

21. Governance and Expansion

The Master Style Vocabulary is intentionally broad, but no list can represent every historical, regional or emerging design label. New styles may be added only when they are distinct, recurring, useful for product matching and not adequately represented by an existing canonical style or alias. New entries must be added centrally to the controlled Style Master.

22. Final Standard

Primary Style: required, one canonical value.
Secondary Style: conditional, maximum one in the Universal Product Master.
Aliases: normalize user/seller language; do not become duplicate stored styles.
Marketing/mood terms: kept outside Style.
AI matching: driven by canonical styles and enriched by other structured attributes.

Scope Note

This vocabulary is designed as a comprehensive operational master for AIDOOi, not as a claim that a single universally official list of all interior design styles exists. Historical, regional and emerging terminology can overlap; governance rules above control future additions.
